

EASTERN NEWS.

DATES TO THE 20TH.

New York, May 18th.—A correspondent with Butler gives a detailed account of Beauregard's attack on our forces. On the 16th the rebel lines opened with artillery. Shells poured upon our position. A dense fog enveloped the country, and both armies were wrapped in a misty veil. The rebels massing their troops, a tacked our right under Hickman. The first blow was dealt with terrific force. Hickman's brigade of the 18th corps holding the right was doubled up and forced back on the next brigade, which was also thrown into confusion. Our men observed a column passing between Hickman's right and the river. Taking him in front and rear they pressed him between the columns, and for a time threw him into confusion. Hickman made a gallant fight as long as he could, but the enemy came upon him so suddenly and in such overwhelming numbers that a successful resistance was impossible. A heavy attack was made on the entire line of the 18th corps, under a feint along the front of the 10th corps. The entire right was forced back some distance. The battle raged with unexampled fury, the rebels throwing heavy masses upon us, forcing us back nearly a quarter of a mile. Our men fought stubbornly—charged the rebel advance with terrible slaughter, but not without some loss on our side. The enemy numbered not less than 15,000, and rushed into our murderous fire with a recklessness and steadiness scarcely to be believed. We lost four guns.

With great exertion, the line of attack was again formed, and again they advanced in splendid style. A misty fog again enveloped the country, and the rebels, who had been steadily on till one-fourth of them were killed and wounded, when they broke, and rushed quickly to cover of woods. After this bloody repulse, they hurried column after column on Hawley's brigade of Terry's division. They came up in the same steady, confident manner, but were received by more rapid and deadly fire by our forces. They then broke and ran for the woods, and were accelerated in their flight by murderous shot and shell. They seemed determined, however, to break our line and force it from its position. Reformed and reinforced, they again, after 10 minutes, got to work, but were precipitately driven back at all points. That ended their effort to force our position, leaving 1,000 on the field. They then massed upon Smith's position. Gilmore immediately ordered Turner to attack, and Terry to support him. Turner's attack had hardly commenced before Gilmore was ordered by Gen. Butler to retire and to strengthen Smith's corps by forming in his rear.

Our troops fell back slowly and in order, repulsing every attempt of the rebels to hasten our movements, and making a stand at every favorable position, until the enemy fell back to their first lines of entrenchments. The fighting now ceased. At half past two, preparations were made to withdraw our forces from the field and return to the entrenchments. The supply trains were dispatched to the rear, and the entire army fell back, the enemy not pursuing.

New York, May 19.—Richmond papers to the 15th, acknowledge that Lee met with a defeat on Thursday, the 13th, and state that the slaughter was terrible. No particulars were known. The papers add that Jeff. Davis had received dispatches from Lee which had been kept secret. Chicago, May 19.—The New York World and Journal of Commerce published yesterday morning what purported to be a proclamation from the President, appointing a day of humiliation and prayer; also calling for 400,000 prayers. The second edition of the World in common with other city papers, was made the victim of a malicious hoax by some scoundrel when writing a manifold copy for the associated press, and sent to all papers. The Herald printed a large edition, but discovered the hoax in time to suppress it. The World and Journal of Commerce are under seizure by the Provost Guard for this publication, in consequence of which neither offices published papers to-day.

Gold which closed Tuesday night at 173, opened at 184, under the influence, doubtless, of the bogus proclamation. New York, May 19.—A special to the Tribune May 18th, says: "Fighting commenced at day-break, has grown into a considerable battle. The enemy were found to have massed all their strength on our right, to make another desperate assault to break our lines and get our supply trains. This movement of the enemy occasioned the re-occupation of our old position of yesterday. The 2d corps occupying the extreme right, became engaged, and the struggle was kept up with severity until noon to-day. Our troops advanced to within range of their earthworks, when a fire of artillery was opened, occasioning a considerable loss; but our guns were soon got into position, and under cover of our fire we charged, took the first line of rifle pits, captured a considerable number of prisoners and several of their guns."

Bermuda Hundred, May 19.—On Monday the rebels came out of their entrenchments in front of Fort Darling, and made three advances, all of which were repulsed promptly and energetically, with loss of 1,500, while our loss was slight. Butler having learned that Beauregard was heavily reinforced, and learning from Richmond papers that several miles of the Danville railroad was destroyed, and that the locks, dams and canals leading to Richmond were also destroyed, decided to fall back to Fort Darling, and gave orders accordingly. Our army securely arrived behind our lines of entrenchment. Several of Longstreet's men were captured, who stated that his whole army was co-operating with Beauregard.

New York, May 20th.—A dispatch headed Headquarters Army of the Potomac, May 18th, says: "At 5 o'clock this morning the 6th corps, supported by Hancock's division on the right and Burnside's on the left, advanced against the enemy's works. The rifle pits in front were those which had been abandoned by us and were filled with rebel sharpshooters who were soon dislodged and driven through the second line and behind thick and impenetrable works of most formidable character. On examination it was deemed best not to make an attempt to charge through this barricade, and the troops fell back in good order, exposed to a galling fire of shot and shell from both flanks. Our loss was about 800 killed, wounded and missing. An attack was made by the enemy on the left in the afternoon, where Warren had posted our batteries, and the rebels were soon driven back and their guns silenced. All was quiet at 6 o'clock, p. m."

The Herald's Washington special says the action on Wednesday at Spottsylvania resulted in a success for Grant, in gaining the advantage in his position over the enemy. This was the object of Grant's attack. "Our entire loss will not exceed one thousand in killed, wounded and missing. The attack was made to compel the enemy to accept battle beyond his fortifications."

A dispatch from Gauley Bridge gives an account of a brilliant victory by Gen. Averill, on the 8th, with the main body of Crook's army. Averill had reached a point within 4 miles of Whitteville, and there encountered the enemy 4,000 strong, under Sam Jones. The fight lasted four hours, but he succeeded in driving them back, killing and wounding many, and capturing a number of prisoners. Sam Medary was arrested at Columbus by the U. S. Marshal, and brought to this city. The cause of his arrest is not stated.

San Francisco, May 31.—A very severe earthquake occurred at six o'clock last evening. The walls of many buildings were cracked and the people rushed from their houses in consternation. Gold in New York yesterday 182 and 183 1-2.

San Francisco, May 22.—English letters state that a combined demonstration will be made against the Northern coast by the Confederate pirates as soon as they can get ready. This information is from Confederate officers through special dispatch to the Evening Bulletin.
